THE MECHANICS ARTS

Building at State College Dedicated Wednesday.

PROMINENT PEOPLE PRESENT.

AND A GRAND PROGRAMME OF EXERCISES.

A ROYAL BANQUET SERVED GUESTS, WHO SPOKE, THE EVENING RECEPTION, SNOW BOUND, ETC.

Wednesday, February 22nd, 1893, will long be remembered by the people of State College as well as by all who were fortunate enough to be present on that day. The dedication of the new Mechanics Arts building, which has about been completed at a cost of $100,000, marks an epoch in the history of that institution that it is hoped and believed will be the date from which a still brighter course and grander work will dawn. The liberality of the state in its recent appropriations to that institution has enabled the Board of Trustees to so build and equip as to make the Pennsylvania State College an institution of learning destined soon to stand second to none in the United States.

As previously announced the dedication of the new building was set for the 22nd and for this event almost one thousand invitations were sent to many prominent men throughout the United States. When the morning of the day dawned the inclement weather was not propitious to a large gathering, but notwithstanding this fact over one thousand persons assembled to witness the day's proceedings. The most distinguished party to arrive was the "Governor's special" on which was a pullman car filled with guests from Washington and one with distinguished men of Pennsylvania. This party included the following prominent men:

In the Washington car were Secretary Noble, Asst. Secretary of Agriculture Willets, Congressmen Reyburn, Kribbs and Ammerman, Hons. J. C. Kerr, J. I. Covington, A. W. Harris and Thos. B. Cockran. In the Harrisburg car were Governor Pattison, Adjt. Gen. and Mrs. Greenland, Col. Krumbahr, Asst. Adjt. Gen, Col. Edwards and his staff, Hon. Charles W. Stone, Ex-Supt. Hicock, Senator Loyd, Rev. Dr. J. P. McCaskey, Hon. A. B. Farquahr, and others. The party was joined at Bellefonte by Gen. Beaver, Gen. Hastings, Gen. Francis A. Walker, and a representative of the REPUBLICAN.

On the arrival of the train at the College they were greeted with a salute by the College Cadets. President Atherton and others of the College Faculty met the party at the depot and escorted them to and all through the new engineering building. Just here it is proper to remark that every body was favorably impressed with the work done, and the Governor especially complimented President Atherton on the new building. From here the party, escorted by the Cadets in full uniform, wended their way to the College building where an hour was pleasantly spent in social greetings and intercourse, inspecting this and other buildings and according to one's own pleasure. The next train from Bellefonte came in an hour late and with a large crowd on board. Immediately on its arrival word was passed to form and march to the Armory where a collation would be served. Gen. Beaver escorting Governor Pattison lead the column and Gen. Hastings with Sec. Noble came next. These were followed in regular order by distinguished guests, the faculty the alumni and others.

Separate tables were provided for each separate band and when all had gathered and were seated the crowd surrounding the festive board numbered 425. The Stopper & Fisk orchestra, of Williamsport, was present and discoursed fine music, while the College students in uniform acted as waiters and the hungry guests discusesd the following menu:

COLD

Turkey Veal Lamb

Pickled Tongue

Salmon Saratoga chips.

Peas,

SALADS,

Chicken

Olives Pickles Cheese

DESSERTS.

Lady cake Pound cake Angel food.

Jelly roll. Small cakes-assorted.

Vanilla Ice Cream

Chocolate ice cream. Orange ice.

FRUITS.

Oranges. Bananas;

Coffee Tea.

At the conclusion of the repast Photographer H. B. Shaffer took pictures of the assemblage and then Gov. Beaver, toastmaster, informally introduced Gov. Pattison, who replied briefly. After dinner speeches were also made by Congressman Ammerman, of Lackawanna county, and Asst. Sec. Willets. The time now being past 2 o'clock further speech making was tabooed and the assemblage formed and marched to the chapel in the College building where the dedicatory exercises took place. President Atherton called the meeting to order and in a brief speech introduced General Beaver, Chairman of of the Building Committee, whose duty it was to present the building to the Board of Trustees. Among other things the General said:

This college is not, will never be and never ought to be, the college of the past. It has a future and a distinct future. It is no more the University of the olden time, but the university of Universal knowledge of to-day. The aim of the old university was the doctor, the aim of the new university is the engineer. One was profession, the other is science. The former we may have, the latter we must have and propose to furnish it. The object of this new building is to separate the pursuit of agriculture from mechanic arts. After a few more preliminary remarks Gen. Beaver then formally presented to Dr. Atherton in behalf of the building committee, the new building of Mechanics Arts to-day dedicated. In the absence of Col. Francis Jordan, President Atherton accepted the building on behalf of the trustees.

At the conclusion of the Doctor's remarks a break in the regular program was made by the introduction of Miss Jennie Willard, who favored the large audience with a very finely rendered piano solo.

President Atherton then introduced His Excellency, Governor Robert E. Pattison, who made an address on "The State and Higher Education." Though not to be called eloquent, Governor Pattison has a forcible and logical way of speaking that makes his talks very interesting. The Governor said he hoped he might live to see the time when State education would reach from the primary up through the university. That the poor might have the same advantage for higher education as the now favored few, the rich.

Music by Stopper & Fisk orchestra.

Dr. Atherton then introduced Gen. Francis A. Walker, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who spoke on "The Educational Benefits of Scientific and Technical Training." Gen Walker's address was a scholarly production and was much enjoyed by all present. Hon. John W. Noble, Secretary of the Interior, was introduced and made an address on "Education in its Relations to our Government." Mr. Noble's speech was among the most entertaining of the afternoon. Dr. J. G. Schurman not being present the Secretary's speech closed the afternoon exercises.

In the evening the Senior Class held a reception in the Armory from 8 to 1 o'clock. This event proved second to none other that has ever been held there and was much enjoyed by the Governor and his party, who stayed for the event. And thus closed the proceedings of a day long to be remembered in the history of State College.

SNOW BOUND.

The one disagreeable feature connected with yesterday's events was the snow blockade on the Bellefonte Central railroad. The snow of the night previous, blown by the heavy winds of yesterday, piled car high in drifts in the deep cut about one mile west of the College. In this huge obstruction the train which left Bellefonte at 4.40 stuck fast although there were two engines attached to only three coaches. The train could be moved neither back nor front, and the passengers abandoned it and went in sleds to the College. Conductor Michael Garvin, in charge of the train, went to the College, and a large number of students and others accompanied him back and in a half hour had the train shoveled out and up to the College Station. It was now more than an hour late, being near seven o'clock, and the crowd of waiting passengers soon filled the three coaches and soon the train pulled out for Bellefonte. Owing to the construction of the road it was necessary to back about one mile to the Y before the engines could be turned. The train went all right until a little west of where it had first stuck when it came to a dead stop again and could not be moved either way. And there we were—over one hundred passengers, many of whom were ladies—all having had no supper, with not even a sandwich to divide between us or a cup of water to drink—cold, hungry and in despair. The only thing to do was to wait for help and again Conductor Garvin made a trip to the College and telegraphed for help. Supt. Shoemaker secured the assistance of two P. R. R. Engines and about 11 o'clock, with two engines and a car load of Hungarians, came to the relief of the blocked train. By this time the snow was piled half as high as the cars and the only thing to do was shovel the train out. This took time and it was near one o'clock before we felt the wheels move and knew we were "alive again." But a trip to the College necessitated some delay and it was near 2 o'clock when the train finally started for Bellefonte and it was almost 3 o'clock, or just 8 hours late, when the train pulled into the Bellefonte station. Imagine, if you please, how delightful those 8 hours spent on the train, without anything to eat for fifteen hours, and you may have a faint idea of the pleasures (?) of being snow-bound. Yet, with all this, the crowd was in the best of humor, none complaining or scolding. Supt. Shoemaker, and his efficient employees, did everything they could to break the blockade as speedily as possible.

NOTES.

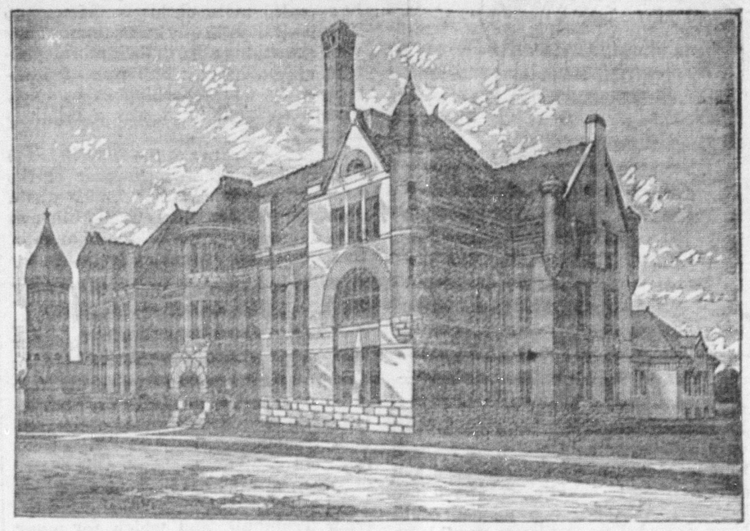

There were more notables at State College Wednesday than ever before at one time.

Secretary Noble is a brilliant, almost eloquent, speaker and what he says is logical and argumentative.

At the table of honor, and almost side by side, sat the past Governor, the present and the future—Gov. Beaver, Gov. Pattison and Gen. Hastings.

Gov. Beaver charged the Board of Trustees that the new building was given to them unequipped and they would hold them to the duty of seeing it fully supplied with everything necessary.

As a representative of the press we wish to acknowledge the courtesies extended by all with whom we came in contact at the College; and especially to we desire to thank Profs. Pond and Sparks for numerous favors rendered.

THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE—ENGINEERING BUILDING.

DESCRIPTION OF BUILDING.

The new Engineering building of the Pennsylvania State College occupies a prominent site near the upper front entrance to the campus and immediately beyond the railroad station. On the one side it faces the main entrance and road way and on the other the main street of the village. It is built of red pressed brick with brown stone trimmings. Its massive, substantial appearance indicates that it is well adapted to its uses, which is the first requirement in good design for any purpose. Its only pretension to ornamentation is the use of brown sandstone to accentuate certain features and the finials and crockets which mark the backbone and ribs of the structrue. These break the monotony of straight lines and give an added touch of color to the whole. The Saracenic, dome-like capping, which is being much used in modern architecture, is introduced here, giving variety and counteracting the somewhat severe outline of other parts. The most striking feature of the front is the great stone arched entrance, supported on short cylindrical columns on either side and extended above into a projection from the rooms of the different floors.

The building is three stories high, with basement under the whole, having, in the rear a wing of one story and attic. It faces the roadway a total length of 266 feet and extends 208 feet to the rear, making a total of 50,824 square feet or about one and one-seventh acres. Inside it, one may tread over two and one-third acres of floor space, surrounded by four million brick. Or, having made a complete tour of the building, he will have been in 57 different rooms.

The new building adds another variety of material and style to the nineteen buildings already on the campus. The old main building, erected in 1857 of the magnesian limestone taken from the ground on which it stands, forms the prominent and central figure. At its left and rear, is the Chemical and Physicial laboratory, built of light brick and trimmed with light Ohio sandstone. Beyond, the main Experiment Station building is of wood and stained shingles. In the other direction, the Botanical laboratory, of cut magnesian limestone and red brick, with its glass and iron conservatory, forms an agreeable contrast with the Ladies Cottage of brick. On the right of the main building, the steep self-supporting roof and square tower mark the position of the armory. The Professors' residence of brick, stone and wood complete the variety of buildings. The new Engineering building is the only combination of red brick and brown sandstone.

The arrangement of the interior abundantly sustains the promise of the exterior. Passing up the broad stone steps and under the great stone arch, one enters the main hallway from which stairways lead to the basement and upper floors. Going to the basement by the left hand stairway, one is in the hydraulic laboratory.

In one corner is a stand pipe which, by the use of compressed air on top of the water, can be made to assume a power equal to a pipe of the same diameter 100 feet high. In the different stories attachments may be made to this pipe for testing the sanitary value of the various systems of closets and drainage.

A wrought iron tank, six feet in diameter and fifteen feet high, will afford opportunity for experiments in their work, gauging flow of streams, etc. Being connected with the reservoir of the college, a sufficient head can be secured for testing water pressure in all its variations. The waste water runs into a deep, open cistern below the floor, where it may be used for different experiments and pumped back into the tank. Work on injectors and calorimeters will take the remaining space of this room.

Passing into the next room one is in front of a 150 horsepower triple compound engine, so constructed as to run in all different ways, simple, compound, etc. It will furnish practical work for the students. At one side are the testing machines for strength of different materials and three engines of different types for student practice. In an adjoining room, all kinds of lubricant, combustion and cement testing will be carried on. In cement testing, a large tank will be used where the cement will be kept under the water for different lengths of time and at a constant temperature.

The next room toward the north is occupied by the ventilating apparatus. This consists of the huge fan which draws the air from the outside and forces it either over the coil for cool air. A mixing damper regulates the amount of each so that air of any temperature may be sent through the building. In addition to this, the air changes every ten minutes in each room, thus making it possible to have perfect ventilation at any temperature. The steam coils are supplied from the exhaust of the many engines throughout the basement, making the heating very economical. The farthest room, built without means of natural light, is used for testing the different instruments used in Civil Engineering.

Returning to the stairway at the south end, the room beyond is the dynamo room. Here are the three dynamos which furnish the 1000 incandescent light to the different buildings and the campus. The dynamos are turned by two engines, all being interchangeable so that in case of accident to one, the light can be supplied by another.

On the right is the boiler room, 45x90 feet, in which are located 6 boilers of 80 horsepower each. From this room, a tunnel leads across the campus containing the pipes for conducting steam to the various buildings, for heating purposes and turning ventilating fans. Beyond the engine room, the coal room is supplied directly from the cars which the Bellefonte Central road runs overhead into the building.

The entire basement is laid with granolithic pavement, under which the heat ducts pass to the flues in the wall.

On the first floor of the main building are the offices of the different professors in charge of the engineering departments and their assistants. At the north end is the college architect's room, and at the south end the hydraulic laboratory extended up from the basement. Adjoining is the model room or museum, in which are displayed the various illustrations of mechanical devices.

Upon the second floor are ten large recitation rooms and the different department libraries. The third floor is occupied by six drawing rooms, lighted from above. In one of them is a blue print and photography room.

Going from the main building to the wing on the first floor, the right hand corner shows a lavatory and dressing room fitted with a hundred lockers. Here the embryo mechanics and smiths cleanse themselves after their practical labor.

Beyond the lavatory, on the right of the wing hallway, is the machine shop were chipping and filling and machine tool work are taught. Electric motors will furnish power for all machines. From this room a tool supply room leads off to the left, beyond which is the foundry. Here, on the earthen floor is built an 18-inch cupola for iron founding and a brass furnace, all the work in which is done directly by the students.

Passing beyond the forge room, one comes through the iron supply room to the carpenter shop, 36x35 feet, fitted with 24 neat benches and tool cabinets. Each cabinet contains saw, plane, chisel, and in fact a complete kit of tools used in the ancient art of carpentry. The student passes in his course from use and care of tools to intricate joinery. Beneath this room is the pattern-making department, with its many turning lathes and benches.

Returning to the front of the wing, the first room on the left is the forge room, 34x42 feet, with cement floor. Twenty forges and anvils give opportunity for practical work. The forges are supplied with blast from a large fan in an adjoining room through pipes passing beneath the floor. The smoke is drawn off by another fan and forced into the smoke stack of the boilers. Every care is taken for the comfort of the workers. The forges, with their tools carefully in place and convenient for work present a pleasing appearance. The work consists of the elements of blacksmithing, tempering and preparation for machine work.

The last room on the left hand side is occupied by the wood working machines with pattern making benches arranged around the walls. Overhead in the attic will be placed the machinery necessary to preparing the stock for use. In a basement room beneath, bench moulding will be taught, where the pupil will determine how patterns must be constructed in order to be practicable. This is preliminary to pattern making. The basement room opposite is a pipe cutting and supply room, for the use of the steam heating plant of the College.

Crossing the siding of the railroad, which extends in the building, the wood-turning room, 24x50 feet, presents 32 lathes for that delicate art. Beginning with very simple forms, the course extends to interlocked figures in a variety of ornamentation. All the complicated forms are turned by the use of chisel and gouge only.

Southern yellow pine is used throughout the interior of the building. Overhead, the open timber work, finished in hard oil, gives a massive effect, which is increased by the height of the stories. Instead of plastered walls, the brick work of the side walls is painted a light buff with a lower panelling of brown.

Industrial education, scarcely known a few years since, finds here a magnificient building, especially designed and erected for its purpose and supplied by the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the proper education of the young men and women who are to continue the development of her resources, Accomodating three hundred students in the different undergraduate and post graduate Engineering courses, it is a magnificent trust for which the college management must give answer to the people. With the system of free scholarships so handsomely provided by the trustees and the equal facilities for those of ample means, there is no reason why any young man or woman should fail to receive a training which will make them useful members of society "in the several pursuits and professions of life."

DIED.—At her home on east Howard street, Bellefonte, last Saturday afternoon, Feb. 18, Mrs. Hannah Kreamer aged about 32 years. She was the wife of Monroe Kreamer, who survives her. She also leaves four children. She was a faithful wife, a loving mother. The funeral took place last Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

Washington, Feb'y. 20, 1893.

The President is as proud of the legislation which placed the finest ocean-steamships in the world under the American flag as of any single accomplishment of his administration, and it is his intention, unless something occurs to prevent, to go over to New York on the 22—fitting day for such a deed—in order to raise with his own hands the stars and stripes over the magnificent steamship New York. The President expects to be accompanied from Washington by his entire cabinet and a number of prominent Congressmen (if they can get away) and other officials. The U. S. cruiser Chicago, now in New York harbor, will fire the national salute of twenty-one guns, as "old glory" reaches the mast head of the New York.

The treaty for the annexation of Hawaii which was sent to the Senate last week, has been favorably reported from the committee on Foreign Relations, and although there is some opposition in both parties it is regarded as a certainty that more than the necessary two-thirds will vote for its ratification.

Both the President and Secretary Foster have become convinced that the recent and continued demand for gold is largely artificial, manufactured for the express purpose of trying to compel an issue of bonds, and for that reason they have both arrived at the conclusion that no bonds shall be issued during this administration.

Senator Sherman's amendment has been adopted by the Senate, authorizing the Sec. of the Treasury to issue $50,000,000, in 3 per-cent five year bonds whenever in his discretion it becomes necessary to keep up the Treasury gold reserve. The bonds could be issued under present laws, but they would have to bear 4 per-cent interest and to run for a long period; hence this amendment.

The democrats in the House tried to cripple the federal supervision of Congressional elections by attaching an amendment to the Sunday Civil Appropriation bill, prohibiting the payment of any expenses incurred by prosecution under the laws relating to the election of Members of Congress. The Senate promptly struck out the amendment as soon as the bill was taken up. The gentlemen who are so anxious to put a stop to federal supervision of election will have to wait until the next Congress gets together; this Senate will not sanction any of their schemes, no matter how cleverly they may be disguised.

The Pension laws will not be turned upside down at this session of Congress, although there was a strong effort towards that end made by the anti-soldier democrats, resulting in a three minute free fight on the floor of the House.

It is significant that Representative Compton, of Maryland, who is probably closer to Senator Gorman politically than any man living, should be the most outspoken man in Congress against the selection already made for the cabinet. A republican friend, joking Compton, said to him: "If you keep up your criticism you will find no place at the patronage trough." "I don't care," said Mr. Compton, "I am to old to change the habit of saying just what I think of public men's acts. I do not approve the appointment of Gresham and Hoke Smith, and I have no hesitation in saying so. While it might disappoint a few of my constituents it would relieve me of a great deal of bother should all federal patronage be denied to me under the new administration."

Here is one reason for Judge Gresham's having voted the democratic ticket: Just before Justice Brown was appointed to the U. S. Supreme Court a delegation of Chicago lawyers came to Washington to urge the President to nominate Judge Gresham to the vacancy; they told him how magnanimous such a nomination would be and gave him to understand that they were here with Judge Gresham's knowledge and consent. The President heard all they had to say and then told them there were two reasons, either sufficient, why he would not nominate Judge Gresham. First, the appointment did not belong to the section in which Judge Gresham lived; second, he would not put himself in the position to give people the right to say that he had used one of the highest appointments in his gift to placate a personal enemy. It was this refusal that determined Judge Gresham to withdraw from the republican party. How he coquetted with the populists' Presidential nomination and finally announced his intention to vote the democratic ticket is known to all newspaper readers.

Democrats regard Mr. Cleveland's cabinet as so far announced as being more personal than political in its make-up, and indicating that it is Mr. Cleveland and not the democratic party who is in control.

Judge Jackson's nomination to the Supreme Court was confirmed without the formality of a vote, there being no opposition expressed.

HE REFUSED A CROWN

AN EXAMPLE OF WASHINGTON'S NOBLE AND UNSELFISH NATURE.

How This Action Impressed Gladstone and Carlyle—It Seemed Incomprehensible to Bonaparte—Washington's Relations with Trumbull and Arnold.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

Mr. Gladstone, in one of his chats with Chauncey M. Depew, said that he was inclined to the belief that all in all perhaps the greatest man since Martin Luther was George Washington, and the great English statesman went on to explain what he meant by this characterization. He did not regard Washington as intellectually possessed of such genius as any one of half a dozen men whom he could name. His military genius is undisputed, although of course it is hardly fair to compare it with that displayed by John Churchill or Napoleon or Wellington. Judged simply by results, it was as great as the victories of any of these men, since it led to the establishment of a nation destined to be pre-eminent in the nations of the world.

Every one who has studied the military movements of the Revolution on both sides is aware that Washington was very greatly helped by the distractions which existed in Great Britain and which made it impossible to concentrate its efforts in the American colonies. What the result would have been had Great Britain sent a Wellington commanding a great British army in case he and Washington joined in battle no man can say.

Yet Mr. Gladstone thought that in some respects Washington stood the greatest tests. His so called Fabian policy, which consisted in extraordinarily skillful avoidance of battle when defeat would have been almost certain and when it required strategy of the highest order to avoid it, was carried out with the patience and the conviction of genius. His retreat after the battle of Long Island was of itself, in Gladstone's opinion, sufficient evidence of great military ability to justify his appointment as commander in chief of the American armies.

But it was not in respect of military quality that Mr. Gladstone regarded Washington as so pre-eminently great. It was in the perfect balance of all his greater moral and intellectual qualities that this pre-eminence lay. His patience, according to Mr. Gladstone, was something exceeding that of any other man who achieved greatness, for it was patience under extraordinary irritations, and patience exercised for no personal ambition, but simply for the cause.

His conception of what the government which he was seeking to establish should be was quite as distinct and comprehensive as that of Hamilton, Jay, Madison or Jefferson, although he probably could not have set forth in legal argument as they did the reasons for that conception. They were admirably set forth in his messages, and especially in his farewell address, although there are indications that some of the messages were written by Hamilton, while the farewell address was unquestionably written by Livingston, although some writers believe that Madison wrote it. But if the phraseology was that of the secretary the ideas were those of Washington, and he undoubtedly set them forth to his secretaries, asking them, who were more familiar with the literary use of the pen than he, to put them in fitting language.

Mr. Gladstone regards the finest triumph of noble, unselfish, patriotic and majestic impulse to be illustrated by one brief incident in Washington's career. When Washington refused the crown, then the world had the finest exemplification of a noble, majestic nature.

The incident is not as familiar as it should be. American youth know that Washington captured Cornwallis, made a brilliant retreat after the battle of Long Island and worried and fretted the British armies into exhaustion during a seven years' war. They also know that he was president twice and declined to become president a third time. There are not many who know that the only time tears were seen in his eyes and the manifestation of great personal sorrow was made to those about him was upon that occasion at the close of the war when his army, encamped upon the banks of the Hudson, was about to be disbanded. There were men who were fearful that the ambitions and jealousies of some of those who had been of influence during the Revolution would lead them to attempt to gain great personal power. There were others who believed that as a result of the victory there would be established in America a constitutional monarchy modeled after that of Great Britain. The nation as we now know it was a government yet to be created.

So a company of officers—men having influence—having talked this matter over, agreed to go to Washington, ask him to accept the crown of empire and to promise him the support of the army in establishing thus a personal throne. When they approached him Washington believed that these officers and friends of his had come upon some such errand as led them often to seek him for counsel. He was in a happy frame of mind that morning. The war was ended victoriously, and he had already been in consultation with Hamilton and some others respecting the form of civil government which the now free colonies should undertake.

They offered him the crown in but a single sentence. A few years before, across the river, Washington, being seated at breakfast, had been approached by an officer, who said to him that Benedict Arnold had fled after an attempt to betray West Point into the hands of the British. The news was appalling and to Washington must have been extraordinarily painful, since for Arnold he had a personal affection which he bestowed upon only two or three of his other officers. Yet so great was his self command, so superb his capacity for suppressing emotion, so thoroughly had he schooled himself to face adversity with calmness, that those about him only saw a look of sad sternness come to his countenance as he uttered the now historic words, "Whom can we now trust?"

But when these officers proposed to him the empire and tried to put the scepter in his hand Washington broke down. There was sorrow and there was anger in his countenance and in his manner. Tears came to his eyes, and when he dismissed them with a sad gesture and only a brief word these men realized that Washington had been shocked and grieved that it could have entered into their hearts that he for one moment could have regarded an empire as possible or could have fought through those seven years that he might himself attain the throne.

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

In that action Washington not only revealed his moral greatness, but, according to the opinion of Mr. Gladstone and other great English thinkers who have studied his life, made it impossible that a monarchy could ever be established in the United States.

Carlyle, who had no great opinion of the American Revolution, believing, if his private talks with Americans whom he met have been correctly reported, that it was little more than a guerrilla warfare, nevertheless has said that this half sorrowful, half angry and contemptuous repulse to those who were bringing to him a crown was something greater than the command of the American armies through seven years to ultimate victory. It was an act that Europeans could not understand.

Bonaparte was always inclined to believe the story purely apocryphal, although he was a great admirer of Washington and paid a higher tribute to his military genius than some other great captains have done. But it was incomprehensible to Bonaparte that a man should have conducted a prolonged warfare to success without any idea of personal aggrandizement, and, moreover, Bonaparte himself had no conception whatever of any other form of republican government than that hideous nightmare which followed the French revolution.

Washington's greatness was impressed upon some of the great men of the times in which he lived even before the world understood his victories, and there are some anecdotes traditionary respecting his relations with two of the ablest men of the Revolutionary period which have not become threadbare by constant repetition, and which illustrate this impression of greatness which he gave to his contemporaries.

Two of the ablest men produced by the Revolutionary era were Jonathan Trumbull and Benedict Arnold. They were both natives of eastern Connecticut. Arnold was born only a few miles from Trumbull's home. Trumbull was a man of great piety, splendid executive capacity and possessed in the highest degree the qualities of statemanship. Arnold was intellectually brilliant, but even in childhood had revealed deficient moral quality. He would have made a great business man, and was in fact embarked on such a career when the guns at Lexington brought him into the field. Trumbull, who was governor of the Connecticut colony, greatly admired Arnold's energy in getting his company together within an hour after the messenger brought the news of Lexington, and at the bayonet's point demanding powder from the hesitating New Haven authorities, and then, equipped, leading them in the march across country to Boston. It was Trumbull who advised Washington of this exploit, so that Washington became early impressed with Arnold's military ardor and ability.

Arnold's achievement in taking an army across the wilds of Maine to Quebec, which has been likened by some writers to the marches of Xenophon or Hannibal, gained for him the warmest friendship of Washington.

Arnold's letters show that the only man in Revolutionary times for whom he felt either fear or respect was Washington. In Washington's presence Arnold was subdued, gracious and respectful. Some of his letters indicate that he had for Washington a feeling he had for no other man, something of affection, and it was apparent to those who studied the life of Arnold that the only person before whom he stood tamed and whose authority he cheerfully acknowledged was Washington. That indicates something of that great moral quality which led Mr. Gladstone to speak of Washington as perhaps the greatest man since Luther. When he was contemplating his awful treachery the only thought that gave Arnold pain was that Washington would suffer. For the rest he cared not one jot.

Trumbull, although not so conspicuous in the agitations which led to the revolt of the colonies as Sam Adams or John Hancock or Roger Sherman or Thomas Jefferson, was nevertheless regarded by Washington as the strongest friend that he had to lean upon. It is probable that he revealed more of his confidences to Trumbull than to any other man. They were something alike in their moral qualities, although Trumbull was of Puritanic piety, while Washington was not, though each of them was a religious man.

Some fifty years ago the Hon. Learned Hebard was appointed executor of the estate of William Williams, who was a grandson of Jonathan Trumbull, and whose father was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. In the settlement of the estate Judge Hebard came across a vast amount of correspondence, including letters which passed between Washington and Governor Trumbull. Some of these letters were formal business documents; others were of a more confidential nature. They revealed on the part of Washington a freedom from reserve which none of his other correspondence shows. One or two of them contained that term which Washington publicly applied to Governor Trumbull, and which for many years was regarded as a nickname for the American nation, "Brother Jonathan."

Some of Trumbull's correspondence was also found, which shows that this man of genius and clear intellect, a man born to be of authority himself, had recognized in Washington that quality of greatness early in the time of the Revolution and before he had demonstrated it to the world. Trumbull's letters, while not extravagant, for he was not the man to use extravagant terms, indicate that Trumbull regarded Washington as having been specially furnished by Providence with those greater qualities, not only military, but moral, which were necessary to establish the American nation. He had almost the feeling for Washington which Arnold had, although in his case there was personal intimacy and almost an equality of relation which probably no other man of the Revolution enjoyed.

Thus the impression and influence which Washington created and exerted upon these two men—one of brilliant ability, but morally bad; the other of intellectual and moral integrity and of statesmanlike quality—suggest how it was that to men of all quality the impression that he gave was that of greatness, exactly as to the greatest intellects of this day, like Gladstone's, the same impression has been given by a study of his life.

THE LORDLY HUDSON.

WASHINGTON'S WOOING AND WARFARE ON ITS BANKS.

He Courted and Was Refused and a Score of Years Later Fought and Won on the Scene of His Early Disappointment. Romance of a River.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

The Hudson river and various points along its banks teem with historic glory. To one who is familiar with the record of the colonies that afterward became the United States of America the mention of the name evolves a panoramic retrospect that has all the gorgeousness of a dream and the solidity of fact. There was the old Dutchman who sailed up the stream looking for a waterway to the Indies. Following the explorer came the colonists, the village of New Amsterdam, and later the city of New York, while at the head of tidewater, nearly 170 miles from the bay, rose the trading post of Albany, afterward destined to be the capital of the Empire State, and far above there frowned, as they still do today, the Adirondacks, probably the oldest mountain range on the face of the globe. It was from a boat on the upper Hudson that the Indians carried Johnson, the noted English general, to the "healing waters" of the Saratoga springs. It was on the Hudson that West Point, the famous military academy, was established. On that stream Fulton launched his steamboat, and near its banks lived Washington Irving.

But the chief historical charm, of the lower Hudson particularly, is associated with the events of the Revolution and the mighty name of Washington. From Garrison's down to the sea the land on both banks teems with splendid memories of sacrifice, romance and patriotism, although in one place the beautiful picture of heroism and endeavor is tinged by the dark stain of treason. Wherever a mansion still stands in which the Father of His Country slept for a night it is known and visited as "Washington's headquarters," and there are several of them. Two, though, have about them that air of love or tragedy with which many delight to associate a great man's name.

It was at the manor house of her family in what is now the city of Yonkers that Mary Phillipse was born 162 years ago. Washington met and wooed her in 1756, but she refused his addresses and by so doing possibly changed the fate of the colonies. When the conflict with England began a score of years later she and the rest of her family espoused the Tory cause, and as a result they were attainted for treason and their property confiscated. The turn of the wheel of fortune brought Washington to the manor house again, not as a wooer, but as a warrior. He made the mansion his headquarters before and after the battle of White Plains, and again took possession of it in 1781 while his army camped on Locust hill.

The house is a fine old structure, built with the sturdiness and honesty of purpose for which the architects and mechanics of the colonial period were noted, and is now the principal official building occupied by the Yonkers city government. Where the the minuet was danced and the Christmas feast was served, where brides came home to become stately matrons and mothers, a court now sits, and blue garbed officials go in and out of the doors that were wont to open in welcome to gentlemen who wore small swords, satin coats, knee breeches and lace ruffles at collar and at wrist.

The sister of Mary, Washington's scornful sweetheart, was Susannah Phillipse, who married Beverley Robinson and went to housekeeping in the old family mansion, which stood on the east side of a road leading to Peekskill, about a mile below Garrison's station. This place was called the Beverley House, and around it centers the story of the treason of Benedict Arnold. It consisted of three buildings joined together, extending east and west and fronting toward the south. Last spring it was totally destroyed by fire, and three tall walls of blackened brick and masonry, says a contributor to the New York Evening Post, are all that is left of the most interesting dwelling on the Hudson. It was Benedict Arnold's headquarters in 1780, and from it he fled to the enemy. The owner had gone over to the British some time before, and Putnam and Parsons lodged there while campaigning in 1778-9. On July 31, 1780, Washington took up his lodgings in the mansion, and five days later Arnold arrived, having been appointed to the command of West Point and its dependencies.

Thus the river rolls on to the ocean, gathering its strength from the storms in the Adirondack mountain forests, its beauty from the wide sweep of plains, and later from the lofty Palisades, and its historic splendor from the deeds of George Washington, of Virginia, first commander in chief of the armies of the United States of America.

THE FIRST LAW OF NATURE.

This self-preservation is acknowledged to be, and people who adopt against the encroaches of disease a genuine medicinal safeguard, accredited by experience and the sanction of physicians, afford a happy illustration of the wisdom of the saying, in the health they restore and continue to enjoy. Among maladies, against the growth of which Hostetter's Stomach Bitters affords efficient protection, diseases of the kidneys and bladder are fraught with the utmost peril and exhibit great obstinacy when opposed by ordinary means. The Bitters can and will subdue them. No testimony is stronger than this. Used at the outset and persistently, the best results may be expected. This medicine also eradicates liver complaint, constipation, dyspepsia, malaria, rheumatism and nervousness.

PENNSYLVANIA DAIRY SCHOOL

The butter section of the Creamery Course at the Pennsylvania State College Dairy School has just closed with highly satisfactory results. The attendance was fully up to expectations in point of numbers and character of the students, most of whom had had an experience of from one to a dozen years in operating a creamery.

The small loss of butter fat in the skimming and churning done by the class under the supervision and instruction of Mr. H. B. Gurler, ex-President of the Elgin Board of Trade, a thoroughly practical and experienced creameryman, has perhaps never before been equalled.

The following tables show some of the more interesting features of the work:

SKIMMING.

Date.	lbs. of milk skimmed per hour.	Tem. of milk.	Per cent. of fat in milk.	Per cent. of fat in skim'ed milk.	lbs of skim milk to contain 1 lb. of butter fat.
Jan. 17	2010	84° F	4.2	.01	10000
" 18	——	85	4.1	.01	10000
" 19	1731	84	4.3	.005	20000
" 20	1950	84	3.8	.01	10000

CHURNING.

Date.	Per cent. of fat in cream.	Tem. of start	Tem. at which butter gathered.	Per cent. of fat in butter-milk	Pounds Butter milk to contain 1 lb Butter fat.
Jan. 9	33	40	52	.001	100000
" 10	23	43	52	.03	20000
" 11	25.2	44	55	.03	3333⅓
" 12	29.4	50	58	.07	1429
" 18	20.5	50	60	.00	1000
" 19	23.7	57	57	.10	1000

A conservative estimate places the loss of butter fat in skimming in the average creamery at two-tenths of one per cent. and in churning at five-tenths of one per cent.

The importance of the work done by the dairy class may be best shown by a comparison of the money value of the butter fat lost during a year in a creamery handling 10,000 pounds of milk per day when doing average work, and when doing as thorough work as that above noted.

LOSS OF BUTTER FAT PER YEAR IN CREAMERY USING 10,000 LBS. OF MILK PER DAY.

	Butter fat lost in skimming.	Butter fat lost in churning.	Total loss of Butter fat	Value at 25 cents per pound.

Average.	5840	2737	8577	2144.25
Difference,	5630	2555.5	8185	$2046.10

An explanation of this thorough churning is found in the concentration of the cream and the very low temperature at which the butter gathers as shown in the fourth column of the second table. This fact was recently discovered by Mr. Gurler and will be the means of saving thousands of dollars to the dairy business of the country if intelligently applied. In order to churn at this temperature it is necessary to have cream containing a high per cent. of butter fat, which may be had by a proper adjustment of the separator.

Thorough instruction in all three points, the Babcock test, ripening cream, cheese making, &c., is furnished free of charge at the Dairy School during the months of January and February. The month of March will be devoted to Home Dairy Methods. A limited number of scholarships in this course are vacant and students will be enrolled in the order in which their applications are received.

THE MAN IN THE MOON

Is supposed to have a special influence on the affairs of lovers, but comparatively few realize how very old the superstition is. This same man in the moon has for ages been the god of love of the Chinese, and, it is believed, slides down to earth on a moonbeam, ties the end of the lover's queue to the top of the fair maiden's nose, by a magical knot, after which nothing can prevent the union. The marriage ceremonies of this ancient nation are very curious, and these and many others are described in a very interesting article on "Curious Customs of Courtship and Marriage," charmingly illustrated, published in DEMOREST'S FAMILY MAGAZINE for March. A superbly illustrated paper, entitled "In Mulberry Bend and Beyond," gives a very clear idea of the slums of New York; and to read the profusely illustrated article on "Japanese industries and Occupation" is almost equal to a trip to Japan. If you are interested in knowing about a fashionable theater-party, a Lenten luncheon, ladies' literary clubs, a grand musicale, and other Lenten entertainments, you should read "A Debutante's Winter in New York; there are a number of charming stories, good poems, Madame La Mode discourses of the latest "Society Fads," there are innumerable illustrations, including a water-color of "A Vilking Ship," and all the departments are full to overflowing of good things. DEMOREST'S is the ideal "family" magazine, and every number is equally interesting. Published for 20 cents a copy, or $2 a year, by W. JENNINGS, DEMOREST, 15 E. 14th St., New York.

Mrs. Flora Ellice Stevens, of Chama, New Mexico, as a notary public recently administered the oath of office to her husband, Wm. L. Stevens, who had been elected justice of the peace. Mrs. Stevens has for several years administered the oath of office to all the election and returning boards, precinct officer, etc. At the last election, she asked a group of gentlemen, acquaintances of hers, who were standing on the side-walk, if the election would be held in a certain building. "Are you going to vote?" they asked. "No, I am going to swear in the judges, so that the rest of you can vote," she replied, an answer which was greeted with a shout and laughter.

DIDN'T WANT A GIRL.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to do the work. Ripans Tabules: standard remedy

In Paint the best is the cheapest. Strictly Pure White Lead is best; properly applied it will not scale, chip, chalk, or rub off; it firmly adheres to the wood and forms a permanent base for repainting. Paints which peel or scale have to be removed by scraping or burning before satisfactory repainting can be done. When buying it is important to obtain properly made. Time has proven that white lead made by the "Old Dutch" process of slow corrosion possesses qualities that cannot be obtained by any other method of manufacture. This process consumes four to six months time, and produces the brands that have given White Lead its character as the standard paint.

"BUT GOD DID."

Harry and Lucy were playing in the dining room, when their mother set a basket of cakes on the tea-table and went out. They were all frosted so nicely, and did look very tempting.

"How nice they look," said Harry, reaching out his hand to take one.

"No, no, you must not," said Lucy. "Mamma did not say we could have any."

"But she wont know," said Harry; "she did not count them."

"But God did," answered Lucy.

This made Harry look sober. He drew back his hand, and went and sat down in his own little chair. He looked as if he was thinking over something.

"Yes, yes, Lucy, I guess you are right. God must count things, for don't you know teacher told us in Sunday-school that the Bible says 'the hairs of our head are all numbered.'"—The Water Lilly.

THE reports from Europe for the last month are painful. In Berlin 100,000 out of employ, the weather terribly severe, violent disputes in the Socialist meetings; in Belgium 250 distressed workmen trudging through the snow from Ghent to Brussels to demand Government help, and meanwhile hundreds of millions spent for keeping up vast armies. The upbuilding and Protection of peaceful industries may well be our American idea.

DEATH OF MISS MARY MALISSA ST. CLAIR.

For some time past Mary, daughter of A. J. St. Clair, of Fleming, Pa., had been confined to her room with that dread disease consumption. Everything that kind parents and friends could do, was done, but Mary grew weaker and weaker until Saturday night, Feb. 11th, at ten minutes of twelve o'clock the "Death Angel" came and she fell asleep.

"Asleep in Jesus! blessed sleep.
From which none ever wakes to weep!"

She was born Sept. 28, 1872, and was taken into the M. E. church by Rev. A. W. Guyer, Sept. 5, '86, having been converted the previous winter.

She was always faithful in her attendance on the means of grace, and her life was in accordance with her profession, in short her life was stainless. She was loved and respected by all who knew her, and all with the poet must say:

A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we heard is stilled

On Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock Rev. George Warren, her pastor, assisted by Rev. Eliott the present minister of Milesburg, conducted the services at the home of the deceased. A large concourse of friends followed her to her last resting place.

To the bereaved parents and sisters we will say, Mary has only preceeded you to the land of eternal joy and happiness, there to wait your coming; and in the glorious testimony which she leaves behind, the testimony of a well spent life, the testimony of victory in a dying hour. You have every reason to hope, and because of this hope which is "well grounded" you can say:

Peaceful be thy silent slumber.
Peaceful in thy grave so low,
Thou no more will join our number,
Thou no more our sorrow know.
Yet again we hope to meet thee,
Where the day of life is fled;
And in heaven with joy to greet thee.
Where no farewell tears are shed.

The pall bearers were Messrs. W. F. Smith, H. R. Griest, C. P. Eckenroth, C. B. Calhoun, S. L. Lucas and W. E. Karns.

The family return their thanks to all for their kindness during the illness of Mary, and in this their sad hour of bereavement. They have the sympathy of the whole community.

SHIPPING LOGS TO EUROPE.

The Lock Haven Express says that Mr. William Johnson, of Mill Hall, is engaged in the enterprise of cutting and preparing for shipment to Europe walnut logs. Mr. Johnson obtains the logs from the farms in Nittany and Bald Eagle valleys, and only those cut from the largest trees are taken. The walnut trees cut for the purpose thus far grew to immense size, and the fact of their standing alone in the fields renders the wood of much finer grain than forest trees. In Europe the logs will be cut up for veneering purposes. About fifty logs are now ready for shipment and are splendid specimens of big timber.

WHEN CLEVELAND WAS ELECTED IN 1884 he was poor. He called about him a Cabinet of rich men. In 1893 Mr. Cleveland is wealthy and his Cabinet officers are poor. Circumstances alter cases.

A SUNNY NATURE.

Lovely Woman's Best and Greatest Charm.

WHAT A BRIGHT AND ATTRACTIVE WOMAN HAS TO SAY TO HER SISTERS.

How a Happy and Joyous Nature Can Be Acquired.

Woman makes the sunshine of life. Did you ever watch the flowers turn with irresistible persistence toward the sunlight? So does the bright, joyous, sunny nature of a woman irresistibly attract all to her light-hearted, merry, and bouyant spirits.

Such a nature makes glad the heart; it makes happy the time.

For a man, all the anxiety of business, the weight of care, the gloom and depression of spirits are dispersed as clouds by the sun before the bright smile of a joyous, happy wife.

And it follows no less surely that a cross woman, one never pleased, always fault-finding, discontented and unhappy, will repel all who approach her, and make those who should love her shrink from her society.

Now, the first requisite of good nature is good health. No one out of health can have bounding spirits and feel particularly good-natured.

If a woman feels nervous, weak, tired, languid, lifeless and miserable, experiences a faintness, sense of fulness after eating, has irregular appetite, constipated bowels, frequent headaches, wakeful or disturbed and unrefreshing sleep, weak back, backache, dragging down pains, irregularities, female weakness, any or all of these, it is impossible for her to be light-hearted and happy.

And in the spring these feelings are very prevalent because of the torpid condition of the system after the winter. She must be cured first, and, with returning health, her old-time spirits will come back.

If women will follow closely the advice and example of our bright and attractive correspondent, Mrs. Elmer Craig, of Le Roy, Ill., they can easily attain both health and good spirits.

MRS. ELMER CRAIG.

"I was stricken with nervous disease," writes Mrs. Craig, "which affected my heart, head and stomach. I doctored with physicians of our town, but got no relief from the terrible sick headaches, pains in the heart and stomach until I used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Before I used this wonderful medicine the nerves in my eyes were so affected that I feared that I would lose my sight. I would get so nervous and weak I could not walk across the room without terrible palpitation of the heart. I had not taken one bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, before my head and eyes were cleared of their dull aching, and I am growing stronger every day. I cannot do half justice in the praise of this medicine."

This wonderful remedy is the greatest boon to women ever discovered, and by its use you can be restored to sound, vigorous and healthy womanhood. By all means use it now, in the spring for everybody needs a spring medicine at this season of the year. This is the best of all spring medicines and is recommended as such by the doctors, to invigorate the blood, strengthen the nerves and start up the natural action of all the organs. You can procure it at the druggists, for $1, and it is purely vegetable and harmless. Indeed, it is the prescription of the great specialist in chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th Street, New York, who gives consoultations free, personally or by letter. Use it and it will bring back strength to your nerves, freshness to your complexion, brightness to your eyes, the bloom of health to your cheeks, elasticity and spring to your step, and that happiness and enjoyment of life which you have missed so long.

"SOCKLESS JERRY" A DECEIVER.

The Honorable Jerry Simpson, of Kansas, who has become notorious as one of the most blatant demagouges in Congress, made the assertion in his public speeches during the campaign, that the Carnegie Steel company sold their make of steel columns and girders for building purposes to Canadian contractors at a less price than they sold to the building contractors of the United States. He did not give his authority upon which he founded his statement.

An acquaintance wrote to him and asked him to give the facts more particularly, as well as his authority for making the statement. He refused to answer the letter or put any statement in writing concerning the matter. He is one of the Populist's orators who made every effort to circulate similar stories through the west concerning the Homestead strike and he never lost an opportunity to misrepresent the Carnegie Steel Company for the purpose of converting votes in support of the Populist candidates. The fact is, that the whole campaign was a campaign of false pretence, which was successful in deceiving the people.

If we should judge from the tone of the papers, Democratic and Republican, a counter-movement is on foot by those who have already been deceived to make amends for the mistakes they have made in consequence of the deception that has been practiced upon them. We may expect better political results at the next election in Kansas, as well as other Populist States.

POSITIVE PROOF.

A Strong Claim to Make, and a Claim to Make Strong.

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but possessing just those elements which the system needs and readily seizes, Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up in a perfectly natural way, all the weakened parts, acts upon the blood as a purifier and vitalizer, and assists to healthy action those important organs, the kidneys and liver.

"I can hardly estimate the benefit received from using Hood's Sarsaparilla. Last summer I was prostrated for nearly three months, from poor circulation of blood as I thought, although my physician treated me for nervous trouble. This spring the same symptoms returned, and I concluded to be my own physician, and began using Hood's Sarsaparilla I have not lost one day from my work, and feel like a different person since using it

"My daughter, age nine years, has always complained of her stomach hurting her, and she has had treatment for that ailment, by my physician, without benefit. Since using Hood's Sarsaparilla I have not heard one complaint from her, and her appearance surely indicates a decided change for the better. Consequently, from personal and family use, I cannot say too much in praise of Hood's Sarsaparilla." R. J. RILEY, Business Manager Gazette. St. Clairsville, Ohio.

DIED—At his home near Zion, Friday night, Feb 17 1893 of typhoid fever Henry Showers aged 52 years. He was sick but one week. He leaves an aged father 81 years old and very smart for his age. He also leaves a wife and six sons two of whom are married and away from home. He was an earnest and consistant member of the Lutheran church to which organization he has belonged for many years. The funeral services were from his late residence at Zion Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock a large concourse of relatives neighbors and friends followed the remains to their last restig place.

NOW COMES the New York Times, an Anglo-American sheet, genus Democratic, species Mugwump, and says:

The Tariff is not a matter of immediate and vital consequence. . . . But straight across this pathway to a fortunate future stands the ugly and threatening barrier of a currency demoralized by the continued buying of silver."

Where are we at?

—Some time ago Miss Helen Hastings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Hastings, of Bellefonte, while out coasting met with an accident which resulted in a badly sprained ankle. We are glad to learn that she is recovering and will soon be as well as ever.

Cured of Scrofula

The People will have Hood's

Mr. Dorman's Experience

"My boy, now 9 years old, had Scrofula in one eye from the time he was a baby; discharging all the time. Of late we have been giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it has done all that medicine can do. The Scrofula has disappeared, and his eye is healed up and well. I fully believe Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine in the market. I keep a general store, and it is not a trick to sell Hood's Sarsaparilla for the people will have it. I sell more of Hood's Sarsaparilla than all other medicines together and the store would not be complete without it. My wife has also been entirely cured of Scrofula by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I am heartily thankful for what it has done for us." JOHN DORMAN, Shy Beaver, Pa.

Chicago's Population.

There is probably no city of importance in the world that can show such rapid and wonderful growth as Chicago since its destruction by fire. To-day its population is about 1,200,000. Mr. Peter Van Schaack, one of the leading merchants of that city said in conversation, that a large number of his personal friends, as well as scores of representative men throughout the Northwest with whom he had conversed upon the subject, had found St. Jacobs Oil a pain-curing and healing remedy of the most extraordinary efficacy. It is the Great Remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Backache, Bruises, Burns, Swellings etc.

THE EYES ARE NOW STRAIGHT THANKS TO THE DR.

I have been cross-eyed and that badly for over 28 years. Dr. Salm operated on both eyes in less than two minutes time, without causing the least pain, nor was I confined to my room for a single moment I can conscientiously say that they are now perfectly strong, thanks to the Dr.
MRS. CALLIE KINTER.

CATARRH & BRONCHITIS CURED.

LUNG TROUBLE & CATARRH CURED

I have had lung trouble and a bad case of catarrh for years, my breathing became very laborious about a year before I came to Dr. M Salm under treatment, and I was unable to do any work whatever, appetite all gone and I became a complete physical wreck and I could see in my friends' eyes that they gave me up for lost. However, after all this, I consider myself now entirely cured, breathing good, no more catarrh, can work all day and feel happy once more; thanks to this great doctor. LIZZIE ALLISON.

REMOVAL OF POLIPUS.

For the last 12 years I have been troubled with catarrh and for the last 3 years could not breathe through my nostrils; had tried several doctors, and patent medicine in abundance without avail. Dr. Salm, of Columbus, said I had polipus in connection with catarrh; he removed them for me and I breathe again comfortably through both nostrils; altogether I am feeling much better and find myself on the high way to recovery.

She was of no use for work, and was not able to recognize any one, we brought her to Dr. Salm for treatment, and the improvement the Dr. worked on her is wonderful. USE OF WINE ON NEW YEAR'S DAY.

It seems to me that in the present state of the world, and in the a present state of life, it must be a matter of utter thoughtlessness on the part of person that would offer, on such a day as New Year's to the young the means of intoxication, knowing as they do, that there will be many coming to their house who are not able to resist temptation; knowing that many who, coming to their houses, and to scores of other places, and being tempted to drink, will turn that day into a disgrace to themselves and to their friends; knowing the unutterable mischief that springs from intemperance; knowing what torments and evil experiences are going on about them. I cannot conceive how any should spread upon their table the means of destruction for the young. I would not, for the price of my life, turn out in my parlor a whole box of adders, saying: "If men would keep their eyes open, and be moderately careful where they could as easily justify myself for doing that as for putting wine on my table, and offering it to the young.

"At last it biteth like a serpent," is written of strong drink; but that is not the whole of the truth; it does not always wait to the last. It often bites at first, and all the way through to the end.

If you say that the reason is thoughtlessness, I reply that is not the general reason; nor is it a worthy one. I do not think you put wine on your table for a real hospitality. I fear that most persons put wine on their table from quite different motives. For the most part, we are not a wine-raising nor wine-drinking people. It is a matter of fashion and infinitesimal vanity. Ordinarily men put wine on their table for the sake of show, by way of fashionable compliance. There is but little difference between these reasons. They are a great vulgar mass. None of them will bear examination.

ALCOHOL AS MEDICINE.

Before the New York Pathological Society, Dr. Briggs not long ago presented a striking object-lesson illustrating the injury which sometimes attends the injudicious medical use of alcohol, thereby creating an abnormal alcoholic appetite. It was a diseased liver, taken from the body of a boy of thirteen years, who had died from chronic alcoholism. It was stated that the boy was treated with whiskey for bronchitis when two years of age, and thus formed an alcoholic appetite which his parents continued to gratify. He was taking, at the time of his death, ten and twelve ounces of alcohol daily. On the day of his death he took a some what larger quantity, and all at once, and died in a few hours. He was clearly a victim at the outset of unwise alcoholic prescription.

—One-third of the fifteen thousand arrests for drunkenness in Dublin last year were women.

—The Norwegian Total Abstinence Society comprises 853 local unions, with a total of about 100,000 members; 42,000 men, 43,000 women, and 15,000 children under sixteen years.

—A declaration as to the use of alcohol as a medicine is going the rounds of the British Medical Association. It is said that over six hundred names have been obtained against the use.

—The Blue Cross Temperance Society of the continent has one hundred and eighty sections Swiss, with three thousand members; twenty-one sections German, fifteen sections French and three sections Belgian.

—A prisoner behind the bars in the pentitentiary of Michigan writes to boys as follows: "Let cards and liquor alone: be in bed by 9 p. m., and up by 6 a. m.; eat regularly, sleep soundly, exercise moderately, pray constantly, and you will never be behind the gates."

—Manitoba, one of the Canadian provinces, has a well-enforced prohibitory law in some of its districts. The inspector of prisons reports that there is no prison in one of these districts and none is needed. The enemies of prohibition may have at hand some modification of the force of this fact, but we doubt if they can present a county in any State in the Union where the traffic is licensed that makes such a showing. Intemperance is not the only cause of crime, but it remains a fact that where intemperance exists crime inevitably follows.—[Syracuse Wesleyan Methodist.

THE National W. C. T. U. has met with another great loss. This time the death angel has entered the ranks of superintendents and removed the beloved head of the flower-mission department, Miss Jennie Casseday, of Louisville, Kentucky. The Savior's call, "Come up higher," came on Wednesday afternoon, February 8, and gladly did this "white ribbon saint," as she has long been honestly termed, respond. It is well that Miss Casseday has lain on her bed from a spinal difficulty for more than thirty years and that she has for the past ten years carried on the enormous correspondence of her very important and well systematized department. The last two summers she has spent at the Rest Cottage Home for working girls near Louisville, enduring the agony of removal although conducted in the easiest manner possible, with a Trojan fortitude. The extreme illness which preceded her departure lasted less than a week. Her body lay in her sister's, Mrs. F. C. Duncan's home in a silver gray casket amid a profusion of flowers. The funeral occurred Friday morning, February 10, from Warren Memorial church, conducted by several city ministers. The pall bearers were the young men who carried her to and from Rest Cottage. Her investment in life was princely; what must her heavenly inheritance be?

THE Philadelphia Record is authority for the statement that, "at several bar-rooms in the fashionable part of the city it is now possible to get morphia cock-tails." Medical authorities assure us that, dreadful as is the whisky habit, the opium habit is incomparably worse, both from the greater moral dergadation which it entails and from the greater difficulty of breaking the habit. We had thought that the saloon could hardly be worse, but this new device of the devil shortens fearfully the road between the saloon and the bottomless pit.

THE Long Island Railroad company has informed all its employes that a man drinks will be considered by the company sufficient reason for his discharge. The division superintendent of the Illinois Central in company with a policeman visited the saloons and gambling dens of Fort Dodge, Ia., and the next morning a number of the employes of the road who were found to be habitues of those places were discharged.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Woolley will sail in the Umbria. on March 4, for home, after a most successful and helpful temperance work in England, under the direction of Lady Henry Somerset. The English press has done justice to Mr. Woolley's high order of talent and original presentations of his subjects.

AN OLD PAPER.

Miss Clara Meese of Bellefonte handed us last week for examination a copy of the Ulster county Gazette published at Kingston Ulster county New York by Samuel Freer & Son and bearing date of Saturday Jan. 4 1800 vol. 2 No 88. The size of the sheet is 17 by 24 inches. In it we notice as late news the doings of the American Congress Tuesday Dec 10 1799 also very late news from London dated "Downing street Oct, 19, 1799" also important news by private letters from London, bearing date Oct., 18 1799. The paper is dressed in mourning and contains an account of the death of Gen. Washington dated George Town Dec. 20, 1799 in which among other things it says: "On Wednesday last the mortal part of Washington the Great—the Father of his Country, and the Friend of man, was consigned to the tomb, with solemn honors and funeral pomp." Also the announcement, Gen. George Washington, departed this life on the 14 December 1799 aged 68 years. We also notice an advertisement of Luther Andees & Co, "who have this day been opening goods both fresh and gay."

"I would not live to rouse your passion,
For credit here is out of fashion,
My friends and buyers one and all,
It will pay you well to give a call,
You always may find me by my sign,
A few rods from the house divine."

"The following articles will be received in payment. Wheat, Rye, Buckwheat, Oats, Corn, Butter, Flax, Ashes, and Raw Hides. These articles will be taken in at the Esopus prices, cash will not be refused." From this some idea may be gained of the progress of the past 93 years in gathering and transmiting news. Late news then would be called very old news now in view of the fact that a speech made in the English parliament one day is published in full in the American newspaper of this time the next day after it is delivered. We predict the progress of the next 93 years will be much more than the past what do the readers of the REPUBLICAN throughout the county think about it we should like to have you write and tell us What you think is hidden in the womb of the future one hundred years. The paper before us is to day 93 years, one month and 19 days old.

DIED,—at Roland, Jan. 31, 1893, Mrs. Mary Leathers Neff, aged 76 years. She was a devout christain, a member of the Methodist church for past-seven years. She leaves three children—Joseph, Thomas, Elizabeth; three brothers and one sister, namely Jacob, Samuel, and B. L. Leathers and Mrs. P. W. Barnhart. A large number of friends and relatives followed the remains to their last resting place in Curtin's Cemetary.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

Spring Fabrics—The Basket Weave—Stylish Parasols—China Handles—Millinery—Colors.

All wool Spring materials do not as yet present any striking novelties, but rather modifications and varieties of last season's styles. The "basket weave" appears in self colored wools of both standard and new shades, plaids and also in ribbons. Narrow stripes remain good for another season; groupings of diverse sizes and shadings are noticeable in new cheviots, and also in cottons. Narrow self-colored bourette stripes are again shown, and "whip cord" fabrics fifty inches wide at $1.25 per yard are desirable for early spring. A new plain-colored, smooth finished Cheviot is powdered with contrasting stitches, a relic of last Spring, but re-appearing in various new dress fabrics, parasols and ribbons. This attractive material, forty-six inches wide and $1.25 per yard, is suitable for afternoon also, thereby possessing an advantage over the pronounced Cheviot. Another all wool stuff is called Cheviot challi, the dark shades combining all requisites for traveling or general wear, while the light colors and particularly the flowered varieties are charming for evening wear.

Crimson or Blue

changeable silk parasols with Dresden china handles are prominent among medium priced styles; and another shown in thirty colorings is woven in self-colored, alternate dotted and plain stripes, separated by a narrow white stripe, with either wood or china handles. Narrow, contrasting stripes with "dash of paint" spots of similar shade on white or various colors is a new style, and colored surahs having plain white silk bands near the edge, about three inches wide finished by fancy stitching are also very desirable, not more so however than small checks edged with black lace. White parasols take high rank, for these and colors as well, hemstitching is a new ornamentation, bright-colored bands on white being a pleasing addition. White chiffon, crepe de chine or lace ruffles are much in favor, and many handsome white parasols are draped in these light fabrics to such an extent, that no ribs are visible; ribbon trimmings inside being a special feature. A particularly pretty white crepe de Chene parasol has a six inch white silk band around it, embroidered in pink moss rose buds of varied sizes. A wide crepe de Chene shirring around the top and a deep ruffle headed by a flat puff gives finish; each gore of this style and all of the foregoing, are of the "Paris cut," which having been introduced by Follmer, Clogg & Co., 414 Broadway, are sure to lead. Dresden china handles are more recherche than anything else, carved ivory, decorated glass, trimmed wood, or plain light wood are however very fashionable.

The Prevalence of Light Colors

in hats is even greater than that of last season, nevertheless a certain proportion of black will always remain in vogue. Misses and children's hats are larger than ever; if desired they may be loaded down with four or five colors and as many different materials. The "Empire" hat is the newest shape for young ladies; the large crown fitting closely at the back and over the ears, with a high, long poke at the front. This shape comes in plain straw throughout, or plain straw edged with a rough, colored straw braid, which will be used on the edge of ribbon, also as loops or forming entire hats, sometimes of one color. and quite as often four or five tints are combined. Crowns are pointed, flat, large and small, brims curved or plain; a genuine novelty however is face trimmings on round hats, usually a becoming style. Velvet, flowers, broad leaved grasses, ribbon, straw-braid, violets, clusters of moss rose buds, and ostrich tips in one or two colors are the most popular trimmings. Green and heliotrope in numberless tints are leading colors. Brown, blue, crimson or yellow are all prominent, and changeable hues remain fashionable.

BI-METALLIC SENTIMENT IN ENGLAND.

Mr. Henry W. Cannon (delegate to the Brussels Conference), was asked whether he considered bi-metallism was increasing in favor in England. He said: "The bi-metallists in Great Britian believe that what transpired at the Conference has very materially strengthened their cause, and many people prominent in business believe that bi-metallism has made very rapid strides during the past eighteen months, and especially during the last six months. I am informed on what I regard excellent authority that active steps are likely to be taken soon to bring the question before Parliament, and that careful consideration and discussion will be given it there.

It is impossible to say at the present time whether anything will be done by England looking for the remonetization of silver."—Commercial Bulletin New York February 3.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. DANGERS OF THE SEASON.

The sudden changes in weather in the latter part of the winter and early spring are a source of colds and coughs. This season is a particularly dangerous one for persons with weak lungs or of delicate constitution. A slight cold is likely to become a serious one, and the cough that follows is the one great cause of the many deaths from consumption in the early spring. Never neglect a cold or cough. Keep a reliable remedy on hand and check the first cough, that may lead to consumption. As such a remedy the medicine called Kemp's Balsam is strongly recommended. For every form of throat and lung disorder, including the lagrippe cough, croup and consumption in first stages, it probably has no equal anywhere. Get a bottle to-day.

It is inexcusable in persons to go to church, and disturb the public worship, or go to a public meeting and annoy the audience by unseemly exhibitions of themselves in coughing, when a few doses of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, that peerless remedy for cough and cold, will surely cure their cold. Try it.

Harper's Weekly, published February 15th, will be noteworthy for the number and beauty of its illustrations, and value of its articles. Prominent among the former will be a front-page picture of Tobogganing at Montmorency Falls, Canada, from a photograph; a double page illustration of the "Yale Promenade," drawn by W. P. Snyder; and a characteristic full-page hunding scene by A. B. Frost. An illustrated article on "Tammany's Neglected Streets," will be of special interest to New York readers. There will also be illustrated article on the new monitor Monterey, and the whaleback steamer which is to be used for the transportation of visitors to the World's Fair. There will be numerous portraits, accompanied by biographical or personal sketches including those of the late Mrs. W. C. Whitney, A. Conan Doyle, Eleonora Duse, the Hawaiian Commissioners now at Washington, and S. B. Dole, President of the newly formed provisional government at Honolulu. The number will also contain the usual attractive variety of short articles, stories, and able editorials on the question of the day.

Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford has written a three-part story entitled "Priscilla's Love Story," which is to be published in Harper's Bazar, the first chapter appearing in the issue for February 18th.

The coming woman can be healthy. She will be, if she's wisely cared for. As she enters womanhood, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription builds up and strengthens the system and regulates and promotes the functions. It's a supporting tonic, and a quieting, strengthening nervine. It corrects and cures all those delicate derangements and weaknesses peculiar to the sex. In every case for which it's recommended, the "Favorite Prescription" is guaranteed to give satisfaction. If there's no help, there's no pay. It does all that's claimed for it, or the money is refunded. It's a risky way to sell it—but it isn't your risk.

WHEN DOCTORS ALL AGREE.

It is a fact well established, that February and March are the most trying months to aged or enfeebled persons. Pneumonia, influenza and kindred chest afflictions, are most liable to get in their deadly work. There is but one thing to do, build up and fortify the system with pure stimulants. Medical men all over the country agree that Klein's "Silver Age" at $1.50 per quart, and "Duquesne" at $1.25 per quart, stand without a peer. If you want fine six year old Guckenheimer, French, Gibson, Overholt, or Bear Creek, you can have them at $1.00 per quart or six quarts for $5.00. We are recognized head-quarters for the choicest brands of Wine, Liquor, Cordials, etc. Goods expressed anywhere. Send for complete price list: mention this paper.

OUR STORY TELLER.

THE OLD DICTIONARY.

BY W. THOMPSON.

"No, sir," replied the boy, looking squarely in his master's face, "I never touched anything on your desk. I only dusted the chairs and put coal on the fire. Then I closed the front blinds and went out to the street, and I haven't been in the room since."

"It's very strange!" said Mr. Duncombe a retired broker. "I certainly left a letter, containing a one-hundred dollar bill, under this paper weight, and now I can't find it. Do you know, James, whether any of the other servants were in the study while I was at breakfast!"

"I don't think any of them were, sir. Mary was waiting on the table, and John was in the stable; and when I got back from a short errand, Cook and Susan were both in the kitchen. No, sir, they couldn't have been here."

"Well, James, some one must have moved the things on my desk. Go and tell all the servants to come here at once but don't say why they are wanted.

By an early mail that morning Mr. Duncombe had received, from one of his tenants, named Symons, a $100 bill. He had entered the number, donomination and bank of the bill in his memorandum book and was about writing a receipt when his little ten-year old son, Willie called him to breakfast. He put the envelope and money to one side for the present, and left his study. When he returned he could find neither and it was then he had rung for and questioned the boy, James Inglis, who was now gone on his errand.

When James came back he was followed by all his fellow-servants, greatly wondering at the unwonted summons.

Beginning with the old cook. Mr. Duncombe asked each whether he or she had entered the study while breakfast was in progress. All answered in the negative, and were dismissed from further attendance—all except James.

"Now, James," said Mr. Duncombe, "what am I to think? No one, except yourself, has been in this room since I left the money here, and yet it is gone. If you have taken it, I'll forgive you on condition that you return it at once and make full confession."

The boy turned pale, and trembled so violently that he was obliged to sit down.

Feeling quite certain of his guilt Mr. Duncombe said: "You won't confess then? I was anxious to spare you. But now I must call an officer.

"Oh, sir, don't do that! It will break my mother's heart! I am innocent. Indeed I am sir!" cried the boy.

"No, James, I must give you into custody"—and stepping to the telephone he called up the nearest police station, requesting that a detective in plain clothes be sent him at once.

In a few minutes the officer arrived, and, having been informed of the circumstances, proceeded to search the frightened boy. He soon discovered, as he thought, a first clue; for althought James had in his possesion only a few cents in money, his vest pocket contained a brand-new and rather costly silver watch.

"Ho, ho, my boy! when, where and how did you get this?" inquired the shrewd examiner, while Mr. Duncombe fairly groaned in anguish.

"I got it, at breakfast time this morning, from Mr. Levy's shop, just around the corner. It cost twenty dollars. I bought it four or five months ago, have been paying fifty cents a week on it ever since. This morning I paid the last ten dollars, all in a lump, and then I got it."

"Ah! and where, pray, did you get the money?"

"My brother Joe gave it to me last night. Mr. Duncombe knows that Joe's a sailor on the brig "Vesta," that runs between here and Havana. He came to say good-bye last night, and then he gave me a $10 gold piece."

"And did the other servants see your brother and the money, and have they seen your watch?"

Yes, sir—no, sir. They all saw Joe, but they didn't see the money. He gave it to me when we were walking down the street We would have got the watch then, only Levy was shut up. When I came back I didn't say anything about the gold piece, because I wanted to surprise Cook and the rest of them with the watch this morning. But just as I got back from Levy's Mr. Duncombe rang for me to come here, and I haven't had a good chance to show it yet."

"Well, where is the 'Vesta' now?"

"She was lying off the Battery last night, sir; but Joe said they'd sail early this morning."

Detective Jones picked up the HERALD, turned to the shipping news and read aloud: Outward bound; brig 'Vesta,' Captain Crozier, with box shooks for Havana."

"I'm afraid the boy's a bad one, Mr. Duncombe," he said. "His brother's conveniently out of the way, and he knew it. But I'll step round to Levy's and see whether he changed the bill there—though I guess he's too deep for that."

In five minutes Mr. Jones returned and stated that the whole story as to the watch was confirmed by the dealer, to whom, also, had been told that his brother gave him the gold piece, "which you know sir," he added, "he need not have done if he wasn't trying to head off suspicion. Of course, he could have changed the note anywhere in a moment. However, we'll be as easy as we can with him. We'll keep him at the station for a day or two, while I make further inquiries. We must trace that bill, if possible," and, considerately calling a hack he removed the wretched young prisoner.

Willie Duncombe witnessed the departure of his favorite and on being told the cause, burst into tears and impulsively exclaimed: "Oh, papa! I'm sure James never took the money. He's a real good boy!"

"I do hope that he may prove innocent my son, but I fear he will not. However, we shall see."

That afternoon, several of the evening papers contained this ad:

"Any individual, bank or other institution, having in posession a $100 bill, No. 6248, of the Merchants' Bank, will subserve the ends of justice and receive a suitable reward by communicating the fact to J. Jones, Central Police Station, City."

Though repeated in the next morning's papers, nothing came of this, and it was naturally supposed that the person who cashed the bill for so young a boy was afraid to come forward.

Two days after his arrest, James Inglis, having been duly examined by the police magistrate, was formally committed to stand his trial before a court of competent jurisdiction on a charge of grand-larceny.

Despite passionate prostestations of innocence, he was then removed to the Tombs to await the sitting of the Circuit Court, occuring in ten days.

Meantime, Mr. Duncombe wired the boy's mother, a poor widow, residing in Buffalo, N. Y.

Fifteen hours afterwards she arrived in New York City, took lodgings as near as possible to the prison, and spent all the time permitted by the regulations with her son, of whose innocence she, mother like, entertained no shadow of doubt.

Mr. Duncombe and detective Jones continued to spend money freely, and spared no exertions to discover the missing bill. But all their labor was fruitless. Nothing was heard of it, and in due time the trial came on. The young prisoner, a singularly sweet-faced boy of fourteen, looked sadly out of place in the dock; and when his weeping mother took her stand by his side a murmur of deep sympathy run through the crowded room.

On being arraigned, James pleaded not guilty, and the Court humanely assigned eminent counsel for the defense.

The prosecuting attorney seemed to have little heart for the business in hand, but was obliged to do his duty. On behalf of the people he called as witnesses Mr. Duncombe, Mr. Jones, and all the household servants of the former. With such evident reluctance did each one testify, that the crushing source of their cumulative evidence was much augmented by that very fact, and in the faces of the jurymen could be plainly read condemnation.

Counsel for the defence then took the floor, but all his eloquence, backed up as it was by numerous witnesses as to the prisoner's previous good character, could not shake the obdurate jurymen. Without leaving their seats, they returned a verdict of "guilty as charged," and as the words left the foreman's lips a woman's piercing scream and then her fainting form told how heavily the bolt had fallen.

The spectators murmured in displeasure. Innocent or guilty, nine-tenths of them would have acquitted the boy; but the Judge sternly commanded silence, quite unaware that his own voice bore a suspicious tremor. It was now nine o'clock in the evening.

The prosecuting attorney moved for immediate sentence, and the Judge began: "James Inglis, stand up! You have heard the verdict of the jury. Have you anything to say why"—but now occurred an interruption which neither Sheriff nor officers could control. A boyish voice was heard exclaiming; "Let me in! oh, let me in! take me to the Judge quick?"

The crowd gave way, and Willie Duncombe, holding a small piece of dingy looking paper aloft, burst through the opening, rushed up to the bench and joyfully shouted, "Oh, Mr. Judge, James is innocent. Here's that wicked money!"

"What, what, what, my boy!" cried His Honor, forgetting his dignity in the excitement of the moment—"what is this? Why, bless my soul gentlemen of the jury—"it is a $100 bill, No. 6248, of the Merchant's Bank, the identical bill which you have just pronounced the prisoner guilty of stealing. And now, my boy, how did you come by it? But stay, you must first be sworn."

The spectators repressed all manifestations of delight while the oath was being administered. Then the Judge said: "Now, Willie, tell the story in your own way.

The manly little fellow did so with a modest composure and quaint imitation of court forms which fairly fascinated the intensely interested audience.

"May it please the Court and gentlemen of the jury," said he, "when my mamma and I went home from here, this afternoon, we felt so sorry for poor James that we couldn't eat any dinner, and we wandered all over the house, just doing nothing, only crying. But, late in the evening, mamma said we must try to eat something. So we sat down in papa's study, and Mary, that's the housemaid, brought us some dry toast and tea.

"Then mamma rested on the lounge, and I got a book and tried not to think of James. I was reading about an Indian chief. The story was telling how he looked, and pretty soon I came to a curious word that I didn't understand. So I asked mamma, 'what does zygomatic mean?'

"'Why, Willie,' said she, 'I really don't know. How is it spelled?,"

"Then I spelt out the letters, z-y-g-o-m-a-t-i c, and read the sentence to her—The zygomatic out-lines of his face were decidedly abnormal."

"Mamma almost forgot how sorry she was, and laughed when she said, 'I can't even guess what that word does mean Willie. You'd better look in the dictionary.'"

"Then, your Honor and gentlemen of the jury, I went over to papa's desk and opened the big old dictionary that's hardly ever used. 'Why, mamma,' I told her, 'this is what it says: "Zygomatic, relating to the cheek bones."' And I couldn't help laughing too, though I was real sorry all the time."

"Then I began to look if there were any more such funny words in the dictionary and when I'd turned back to a place where SYM was at the top of the page I found a thin letter with my papa's name on it." (Mr. Duncombe started violently and attempted to speak, but the Judge told Willie to go on).

"Well, sir, and gentlemen of the jury, the letter had been cut open on one edge and I handed it to mamma. The very minute she saw the postmark she jumped up just as quick as lightning, and put her fingers into the envelope, and pulled out that hundred dollar bill. [Tremendous sensation]. Then she dropped right down on her knees and said ever so many times, 'oh, thank God! thank God!

"When she got up she hugged and kissed me a good deal, and we both cried for joy. Then she told me to pull the bell cord, and I jerked it real hard. Mary came running in—I guess she was frightened—and mamma said: "'Oh, Mary, that poor boy is innocent. We've found the money! My dear absent-minded husband had put it in that old dictionary and forgotten all about it. Run quick and tell John to bring the carriage round to take Willie to the court. The cars are too slow.'"

"In five minutes the horses were at the door. The streets weren't much crowded and John run them all the way—and the money and me is here!" the boy concluded with a yell of triumph, forgetting his grammar for once.

By this time there was hardly a dry eye in court, and even the old Judge was visibly affected, as he said, with official gravity, "gentlemen of the jury, you may reconsider your verdict."

"Not guilty!" roared the whole twelve men in unsion, and all the officers in Christendom could not then have repressed the mighty storm of applause which broke in one simultaneous shout from every part of the great room.

The Judge had not the heart to interfere for some minutes. Then he called for order, and, addressing the whilom prisoner said: "James Inglis, you are discharged from custody with, I need hardly say, not a stain upon your character. Court is adjourned."

There followed then a scene seldom witnessed in the stern halls of justice. Judge, jury and spectators flocked around Mrs. Inglis and her son as locked in each other's arms, they wept out their joy, and if some of the kisses, which the more impulsive among the ladies intended for the mother, accidentally fell upon the happy face of the boy, it was doubtless owing to the wild confusion of the moment.

As for Willie Duncombe, it Cupid himself had appeared in bodily form the rosy god could not have been more petted and caressed than was he.

It was needless to tell how amply Mr. Duncombe atoned for his sad mistake. Suffice it to say that the poor widow and her son had reason to bless his absent mindedness, resulting, as it did, in their own permanent prosperity. Webster's Unabridged was provided with a gorgeous new binding and thenceforth occupied the place of honor in the household library, and Willie prized the old book next to the tiny gold watch given him by his father as a memoral of his luck find.

THERE are 5,000 farmers in New England who raise tobacco. Under Protection the value af the crop has increased from $1,490,000 in 1889 to $6,000,000 in 1892.

I have had catarrh for twenty years, and used all kinds of remedies without relief. Mr. Smith, druggist, of Little Falls, recommended Ely's Cream Balm. The effect of the first application was magical, it allayed the inflammation and the next morning my head was as clear as a bell. I am convinced its use will effect a permanent cure. It is soothing and pleasant and I strongly urge its use by all sufferers. —Geo. Terry, Little Falls, N. Y.

The magnificent facilities of the Pennsylvania Railroad make this line the favorite route to the national capital on all occasions.

"The eye of the law" is a correct expression; the law has only one eye, and that is the male eye. In law, in politics, in the church, in the schools, we bungle sadly for want of the other—the female eye, and nothing will ever be fuily and clearly visible until it is wide awake and at its post. It would be sharp enough to catch the male eye napping; only, when that vigilant eye is astir, the male eye will not nap; it, too, will be vigilant and keen.—Shafts.

WHERE RATS ARE PRIZED AS SCAVENGERS.

A man just from New Orleans says there is one peculiarity about that city which is never talked about. "It is," he said, "a city of rats. New Orleans is below the river bed, and it is at all times low and damp. The city is not clean, and large wharf rats multiply the business portion of the city in great numbers, and the pests swarm about in droves. The people of New Orleans confend that the rats are good scavengers, and help to rid the city of refuse matter. I don't think there is a city in the world, not even New York or Paris, that has as many rats to the square mile as New Orleans."—Atlanta Journal.

—Some very interesting matter can be found on the inside pages of the Republican this week. There you will find over four columns devoted to Washington's birthday, two columns of fashion cuts and notes, a good short story, and much valuable and interesting miscellaneous matter. Don't fail to look inside.

RESOLUTIONS BY G. A. R. POST.

Dr. George L. Potter Post, No. 261, G. A. R., of Milesburg, at a recent meeting of the Post passed the following resolutions:

Whereas, The Almighty has seen fit to remove by death five veterans of the late war during the months of December and January 1892 and 3 from Milesburg and Boggs township, three of whom were members of Dr. George L. Potter Post 261 G. A. R., namely Adam Crossmire who died Dec. 30th, 1892, Thomas Bathurst who died Jan. 1st, 1893, and Lewellyn Fulton who died Jan. 5th, 1893, while we as officers and members of Post 261 bow in humble submission to the will of God and believes He does all things well, we still mourn the loss of our comrade; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Post has lost three worthy members, the community three good citizens, the U. S. Government three of its brave defenders, and the families of the three have lost kind husbands and indulgent parents; and be it further

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with the families and friends of the three and that a copy of these resolutions be furnished each family, and be spread on the records of Post 261.

Henry Estrick, who died Dec. 25th, 1892 and David Lucas, who died Jan. 2d, 1893, while not members of Post 261, G. A. R., were brave soldiers and honorable citizens and we tender our heartfelt sympathies to their families. David Lucas and Thomas Bathurst were buried at the same hour from Eagle Chapel, where a very impressive service was held, after which the bodies were taken to the cemetery and buried by Post 261 assisted by firing squad of Co. B, National Guard of Bellefonte.

Post 261, G. A. R., takes this opportunity to thank Co. B, of the National Guard for patriotism and kindness shown in coming through rain and storm to take part in the burial services as a firing squad, Boys, keep it up, it will not be long until we of from 1861 to '65 will be under the sod and you will have taken our places. We have no fear of this great country so long as we have such strong arms and noble, generous hearts as compose Co. B, of the National Guard.

DEATH OF THE WIFE OF JUDGE C. A. MAYER.

Hon. C. A. Mayer, who is now President Judge of the Judicial District of which Clinton county forms a part, was for years Judge of the courts of Centre county and has many friends in this county who feel a deep interest in anything that concerns him. His friends here will learn with deep sorrow of the affliction that has now come upon him in the death of his estimable wife. We copy from the Lock Haven Express: Mrs. Helen Mayer, wife of Hon. C. A. Mayer, President Judge of this Judicial District, died at 12.15 Thursday morning at her home in this city. The deceased leaves her husband and two daughters, Mrs. J. B. Coryell, of Williamsport, and Miss Helen, to mourn her death.

Mrs. Mayer was a daughter of the late Saul McCormick. A sister, Mrs. D. M. Peck, of Williamsport, and two brothers, E. P. McCormick and Agustus McCormick, of Philadelphia, also survive her.

The sorrowing husband and relatives have the deepest sympathy of this community in their bereavement. Rev. Joseph Nesbitt, pastor of Great Island Presbyterian church, of which the deceased was a member, furnished the following tribute to her memory:

Mrs. Helen Mayer, wife of Judge C. A. Mayer, passed peacefully away last night. During the last four weeks she suffered much, and was the subject of intense anxiety among her friends. All that medical aid could do was done to save her life, but all in vain. She was a member of the Presbyterian church from her early years, and a devout, earnest, humble christian. As a wife, a mother, a sister, she was wise, tenderly, affectionate, and eminently helpful; and as a member of society greatly respected and beloved. While she neglected no duty devolving upon her as mistress of her household, and while she was largely hospitable, she made unusual attainments in various departments of literature, and occupied the central place in the circle of her friends. The loss we have sustained in her death is one which words are inadequate to express, but what is our loss has been her great gain.

PEFFER ON A RAIL.

The Kansas Legislative imbroglio has not been settled. There are two lower houses in Session; although the Courts have decided in favor of the Republicans, who occupy the Legislative Hall in the Capitol at Topeka, the Populist are keeping up a side show in another building, which they call the Legal Lower House of the Legislature, which are recognized by the Populists Senate and Governor—the decisions of the Court to the contrary notwithstanding.

One Peffer, who claims to be a United States Senator, representing the State of Kansas at Washington, D. C. telegraphed the Populists Topeka last week, instructing them "to turn the rebels out," meaning the Republicans whose election, have been confirmed by the Court.

This man Peffer displays about as much ability and good judgment in his official capacity as United States Senator, as he did in his younger days, when he engaged to teach a public school. He was employed to teach a public school at or near Christiana, Lancaster county, Penn. When he had been teaching but a few weeks, the scholars became so much disgusted with him, that the larger boys took it upon themselves to get rid of him. One morning they assembled at the school house and placed Peffer on a rail, quietly carried him away from the school house and let him down, after which he departed and never returned.

His conduct in the United States Senate indicates that he has not improved. If the Kansas people will apply the same remedy, that the Lancaster county school boys applied, it may improve his qualification, which he has recently displayed in his telegram to the outlaws, known as the Kansas Populists at Topeka.

It is very clear that this man Peffer is out of his element and is among those, who seek notoriety regardless of consequences. The majority of the people of Kansas are good and law abiding citizens and they are now learning to their sorrow, that they ever adopted the Peffers and Simpsons, as political leaders.

These men will certainly be very short lived in politics and the shorter the better it will be for the people throughout the country.

NAGINEY WEDDING.

Married—at the home of the bride's parents on South Allegheny street, Bellefonte, Pa., by Rev. Miles O. Noll, of the Reformed church, on Thursday evening, Feb. 16, 1893, at eight o'clock, Erank Naginey to Miss Ella Shank, both of Bellefonte. After the ceremoney and a sumptous wedding feast the young couple prepared to start on their wedding trip. A carriage was in waiting at the door and the wedded pair with the father of the bride took seats in the carriage to start for the depot. They had not proceeded far when they were met by a party of young men friends of the groom who stopped the horses, unhitched them from the conveyance and started to draw the carriage and occupants to the depot. Mr. Shank did not like the proceedings and got out and walked; the bride was startled and attempted to jump out but was prevented by the groom. The carriage then proceeded, drawn by the young men blowing horns and making other demonstrations of brilliant joy. At the depot a large crowd awaited them; hearty congratulations were tendered the happy couple and as they entered the train showers of rice fell on and around them. Mr. Naginey has many friends in Bellefonte where for years he has engaged in the furniture business. A short time ago he sold out his business here, finding this town to dull for him, and determined to locate at Athens, Pa., where he will open a large furniture store. On the completion of his wedding trip he will go direct to Athens, his future home. The bride is a sister of Mrs. C. D. Krider, Mrs. G. B. Brandon and Mrs. Ed. Rowe. She is a capable lady in all the accomplishments that go to make up a good housewife and Frank is fortunate in having secured so worthy and beautiful a life companion. We wish them both happiness in their new relations and Frank much success in business at his new location, and this is also the hope and wishes of his hundreds of friends in this county.

Rev. R. R. Gilbert, of Tyrone, pastor of the M. E. church at that place, organized a branch of the Epworth League at Unionville last Tuesday.

Willis Weaver, of Milesburg, has moved to Millheim where he takes charge of the National Hotel of that place. Mr. Weaver is a good hotel man and will make the old National a favorite resort of the traveling public.

Miss Edna Rowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Rowe, of Bellefonte, has been visiting friends at Altoona. This is the first time the young lady has gone away from home and she will no doubt enjoy herself.

Mrs. Robert Brennan, Jr., was surprised last week Friday by some thirty of her friends who came upon her with all the requirements of a lively party, refreshments included. It was the occasion of her 26th birthday. All had a fine time.

Robert Gardner, formerly one of Centre county's most enterprising citizens now living at Tyrone, often has business in Bellefonte and other places in the county. He paid our town one of these visits last week. Mr. Gardner has many friends here.

Gilbert Beaver, son of ExGovernor James A Beaver, was at home last Sunday. He spends his time traveling over the state in the interest of the Y. M. C. A., and has few opportunities to spend a day at home. He is an earnest and faithful worker.

John McDermott, one of the oldest citizens of the town, a man who has been engaged on many public works in the county for the past half century, is lying very ill at his home on east Bishop St. He is 84 years old. Fears that he may not recover are entertained.

David M. Glenn, who is storekeeper at Eby's distillery at Woodward, entertained a number of his friends at his residence on Reynolds' Avenue, Bellefonte, last Thursday evening. Bounteous refreshments were served and all had a good time. Mr. Glenn will soon return to his post of duty at Woodward.

Major W. F. Reynolds, who has been quite ill for some time, sank so low last Tuesday evening a week that his friends were much alarmed. He has very much improved since, although still quite sick. He is one of the oldest citizens of the town and always enjoyed remarkable health and strength.

John F. Potter, Esq., formerly a District Attorney of the county but now living at Central City, was presented by his wife last Sunday evening with twins—both girls. The mother and children are doing well. This is the second time John has been blessed with twins and makes thirteen children in all, eleven of whom are still living.

W. P. Duncan, formerly a prominent Bellefonter but for many years past one of the leading business men and money kings of Philipsburg, was at the opera house last week Tuesday evening to see how the Bellefonte boys and girls, who were in their cradles when he left here, can perform on the opera stage in "Pirates of Penzance."

MARRIED.

Stark—Stover.—At the residence of the bride's parents, near Ronaccord, Kas., Dec. 29 1892, by Rev. Flickinger, of Abilure, Mr. Williard D. Stark to Miss Lizzie Stover, daughter of N. J. and Julia Stover, formerly of Centre county, Pa.

Democratic Free-Traders begin to hedge on the Tariff, and express fears about the Silver question and gold exports. These fears may be well grounded, but what are petty silver troubles or the export of a paltry $13,000,000 of gold a month compared to the $700,000,000 of yearly Tariff burden which Mr. Springer says Tariff "reform" can lift off the bowed shoulders of the people?

BOROUGH COUNCIL.

Council met last monday evening; members present were W. T. Hillibish, S. H. Williams, A. S. Garman, Bauer, Jamison and Longacre. Borough Treasurer Chas. Cook and Borough Salicitor Clement Dale were also present. Important business was up for consideration calling for the presence of both of these men. Next April about $120,000 of Borough bonds fall due; these bonds were given just after the war to run twenty years without option at 7 per cent. This was a specimen of the financiering that was done at that time. The town has paid this exorbitant interest promptly and as cheerfully as could be expected.

Now the bonds are about due and provision must be made for refunding them. Several years ago when Lawrence Brown was chairman of the finance committee a sinking fund providing for the gradual payment of the borough debt was established and there is at the present time about seventeen thousand dollars in this fund. Treasurer Cook thinks that with this fund the borough can wipe out twenty thousand dollars of the orginal debt. Last monday night an offer was made to the council by William F. Reynolds, through his attorney, to take one hundred thousand dollars of the new bonds at four per cent. Provided they would date them Feb. 1, 1893, the bonds to be five twenties; that is the bonds will not mature until twenty years but the borough may pay the whole or any part of them after five years. The borough accepted Mr. Reynold's offer. This will be a saving to the town in interest of about three thousand dollars a year and a reduction of the original debt of twenty thousand. Since writing the above the following communication has been handed to us, to which we invite the attention of the tax payers:

It is reported that the Council has accepted a proposition from W. Fred Reynolds to loan the Borough of Bellefonte One Hundred Thousand Dollars at Four Per Cent, per Annum.

This at first sight, appears to be a low rate of interest, but the Borough pays the State Tax in addition.

The Council has been inconsiderate, as well as premature in accepting this proposition, for the reason that Orvis, Bower and Orvis were ready to take this loan at three per cent per annum for Boston Capitalists. They were not aware that the present Council were considering the matter—they expected the loan to be accepted by the eusning Council.

This mistake will cost this Borough a Thousand Dollars a year, probably for twenty years.

The citizens of our town should call a meeting to consider the matter, and if possible, ask the Court to grant an injunction to stay the proceedings and compell the Council to secure the money at the lowest possible rate of interest.

Died.—At Milesburg, Pa., Friday morning, Feb. 17, 1893, of heart disease, Joseph Murray, aged about 57 years. Mr. Murray was an old soldier and a member of Dr. George L. Potter Post, No. 261, G. A. R., of Milesburg. He served his country in the late war in the 5th Penna. Reserves. He was buried on Sunday, February 19th, by Post 261 in Milesburg cemetery. He leaves a wife and several grown children. This is six members of this Post that have died within a month, and so the old defenders of the flag are fast being gathered to that "undiscovered country from which bourne no traveler returns."

Died,—On Quaker Hill Bellefonte, Friday morning at one o'clock Mrs. James Dolan, aged 52 years. She leaves a husband three daughters and one son, to mourn her loss she has been in feeble health for the last 17 years. The funeral was last Monday at 10 o'clock.
